Dr. Joseph Maroon, world-renowned neurosurgeon, nutritional expert, concussion specialist and brain health expert, has partnered with St. Barnabas effective January 1, 2015 to develop a community-based brain health initiative called “The Cognitive Brain Health Program.”

The goal of this initiative, states Dr. Maroon, “Is to provide scientifically-proven methods shown to aid in preserving brain health even as we age and to introduce healthy brain interventions that can last a lifetime.”

The initiative will emphasize four major brain health areas: changes in diet and the proper use of dietary supplements, brain specific physical activity, elimination of environmental pollutants that target the brain, and improved stress management.

“This is a program of empowerment. We don’t have to accept that conditions like adult-onset diabetes, dementia and Alzheimer’s disease always comes with aging,” states Dr. Maroon.

Coordinating the program at St. Barnabas will be Karen Tabacchi, Senior Vice President for Clinical Services. Dr. Maroon and Jeff Bost, his neurosurgical physician assistant, will oversee the program’s development.
